Why not change the name of the America nleague to the One to Nothing league? So many games in which only one tally has been made have cropped up this year that the change in titles would be advisable, were it not for the fact that the Johnson orcanication, when it changed its monganization when it changed its mon-aker, selected one that later was to prove the most valuable trade-mark in baseball captivity. American means more now than National.

War's Effect on Athletics Will Be Widespread-Boxing Will Gain Pop-in the struggle. But what we have stadium as we know it.

As sport now goes in our civil life these large structures are not now al-ways accommodating the crowds they were built for. But other structures are arising in our army camps, built far more economic plans and of far less pretentious dimensions. The army athletic held is built for use and not for spectators. But the spectator is being cared for in proportion to the needs. The army game is to get more men on the field than in the stands. Hence, small stands, and large athletic fields are the rule. The civilian game is apt to get more men in the stands than play the rame. There's the difference in civili in and army sport. The tormer is commercialized, the latter is of the purest amateur kind we have known in America for many years.

Take it from me, amateur sport is going to boom and blossom out all over Yankee land when the boys come marching home

To return to the army athletic field.

One need not worry about the decision relative to professional sport being a useless or useful occupation if he looks at sport in a big way. Sport has gained tremendous impetus from the war. More men are playing than ever before and, what is vital, men are learning to play who never before knew what sport stood for. The result will be that after this war is over the solders and saliors returning will spread the gospel of sport to every nook and corner of the states. This war will lead to a nation that will be physically fit.

Those who can recall history know that war and athletics have ever gone hand in hand. The Olympic games of the ancient Greeks were carried on for the purpose of fitting the youth of the land for war. Our own Civil War was the father of sport in this country, especially of baseball. I put my money on amateur boxing as the big boom sport of after the war days. Some fifteen years ago our national sports, both amateur and professional entered the building period. Stadlums and sport structures of various kinds arose on all hands that were built to accommodate vast multitudes of people. The effort of every new builder was to outstrip the other. At last we came to the Yale Bowl, erected to accommodate some sixty-odd thousand spectators.

To my mind it seems that boxing will be benefitted more than any other. Now I do not mean prize ring boxing, but a systematic adoption of and wide-spread interest in the scientific side of amateur boxing. This army we are raising has been taught the fundamentals of boxing. It has gone more heavily into boxing as recreation and amusement than it has gone into any other sport and it has learned that the sport is a clean sport. Fact is, there is no more beneficial exercise. I put my money on amateur boxing as the purse is attached.

> The Ohio trainer Voiney French is the man who is entitled to the credit of starting Hollyrood Bob on his triumphant career as a three-year-old. In his two-year-old form he did admit all the statements made above are incorrect and that this story is a myth. But I believe anyone will find by a little investigation that the contention—the war is benefitting and booming athletics—is a correct one. Time will prove it beyond all doubt. This war, costly as it is, means a better and nobler race in the time to come.
